SENATE COMMITTEE ON HEALTH & LONG-TERM CARE

Staff: Rhoda Donkin (786-7465)

Background: The Revised Code of Washington and the Washington Administrative Code both contain extensive references to individuals with disabilities. In 2004 the Legislature passed House Bill 2663 which required the Code Reviser to change references to certain words frequently used to describe individuals with disabilities. Terms like developmentally disabled, crippled, handicapped were identified as disrespectful to persons with disabilities. These terms were to be avoided in law and replaced with terms that placed the individual first in the term preferred. These changes included terms like "persons with disabilities" and "individuals with developmental disabilities," for example.

Summary of Bill: The preferred term to be used in statutes, memorials, and resolutions is changed from "individuals with mental retardation" to "individuals with intellectual disabilities." The Code Reviser must replace the term "mental retardation" with the term "intellectual disability."

Appropriation: None

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Committee/Commission/Task Force Created: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: Language in our state law should reflect the respect we have for all people. It is insulting to be called retarded. We feel hurt and upset when we hear the "R" word. We would like a more respectful term used in statute.

OTHER: We need additional authority to review each section of law where the term "retarded" appears and make sure we make necessary changes so there are no unintended consequences, such as conflicts with federal law and other references in statute that might conflict with this change.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Representative Angel, prime sponsor; Robert Warndell, Heather Harper, Mike Raymond, Michael Rogers, Self Advocates of Washington; Diana Stadden, ARC of Washington State; Scott Boettcher, Isabel Boettcher, citizens.

OTHER: Kyle Thiessen, Washington State Code Reviser's Office.
