- Requires a declaration of truth from applicants for current use open space tax programs.

Hearing Date: 2/17/12

Staff: Jason Callahan (786-7117).

Background:

Property that meets certain conditions may have property taxes determined on current use values rather than market values. There are four categories of lands that may be classified and assessed on current use. Three categories are covered in the open space law: open space lands, farm and agriculture lands, and timber lands. The fourth category, designated forest land, is in the timber tax law. When land is designated as open space it is generally assessed at a lower value resulting in lower tax payments. When land is removed from designation as open space, the foregone taxes must, with certain exceptions, be paid.

Parcels qualifying for current use valuation must have certain characteristics. One of these characteristics relates to the size of the ownership. For instance, forest land and farm and agricultural lands must be 20 or more acres in size, or be a collection of contiguous parcels that together amount to 20 or more acres. Similarly, timber land must be at least five acres in size, or be composed of contiguous parcels equaling at least five acres.

The term "contiguous" is defined as adjoining and touching property held by the same ownership. A land dividing public road does not sever the contiguous nature of the parcels. The term "same ownership" is defined to mean land owned by the same person or, if owned by different people, land managed as a single operation. If the land is owned by different people but managed as a single operation, the term "same ownership" only applies if the land is owned by members of the same family or legal entities owned by different family members. The term "family" is further defined. This term includes spouses, domestic partners, children, stepchildren, grandchildren, parents, cousins, and siblings.

Summary of Bill:

The definition of "same ownership" is changed as it relates to current use tax valuations. The new definition includes any combination of individuals and legal entities if the individuals and the owners of the legal entities are members of the same family. The new definition replaces a former definition that required the same ownership to have both a real person and a legal entity as shared owners.

The definition of "family" is expanded to include great-grandparents, great-grandchildren, aunts, uncles, nieces, and nephews. Cousins are included in the amended underlying definition; however, the term "cousin" is provided with a definition. That definition includes a person that is a direct lineal descendent of the person applying for current use taxation valuation.

The applicants for current use taxation valuation must, themselves, make a declaration that any information provided on the application is true and identify parcels that the applicant feel satisfies the definition of "contiguous lands."
