it has United States Representatives and Senators combined. In presidential election years, Washington's electors travel to Olympia in December to cast their votes.

The existing $5 per diem and 10 cents per mile travel allowance were established by the Legislature in 1891. On March 9, 1891, the Legislature enacted a law providing that every presidential elector who attends:

"at the time and place appointed, and give his vote for president and vice president, shall be entitled to receive from this state five dollars for each day's attendance at such meeting of the college of electors, and ten cents per mile for travel in going to and returning from the place where the electors shall meet, on the usually traveled route."

Per diem compensation and travel rates for elective and appointive officials and state employees, while engaged on official business away from their designated posts of duty, are established by the Director of the Office of Financial Management. As of January 1, 2013, in locations not designated as "high cost" locations, this allowance is $77 per day for lodging, $46 per day for food, and 56.5 cents per mile travelled by a privately owned vehicle.

Summary of Bill:

Presidential electors are entitled to receive a subsistence allowance and travel expenses for each day's attendance at the electoral college meeting.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony:

(In support) One hundred and twenty years is a long way to have to go back to find the source of an existing law. We can update the presidential electors' compensation law to reflect contemporary reimbursement rates. Folks from Spokane, Yakima, and Krupp will appreciate the updated travel reimbursement rates. This bill comes from experience in managing three of the last four electoral colleges. An individual from Spokane kept calling the Secretary of State to ask for a $70 check to compensate for their participation. The historic debate upon the bill's passage includes much discussion about the need for electors to stable their horses. The presidential electors are volunteers who are not well-moneyed and are chosen by their parties to do the highest duty. The Electoral College meetings are always held at noon and only last about one hour, so the vast majority of the people are simply traveling to and from the meeting without an overnight stay.

(Opposed) None.

Persons Testifying: Representative Bergquist, prime sponsor; and Patrick McDonald, Office of the Secretary of State.

Persons Signed In To Testify But Not Testifying: None.
