Congress enacted the United States Semiquincentennial Commission Act of 2016 to establish a commission to plan, develop, and coordinate the commemoration of United States history leading up to the 250th anniversary of the founding of the United States on July 4, 2026, as marked by the Declaration of Independence in 1776. Staff Summary of Public Testimony on First Substitute: PRO: The bill set up an infrastructure for the state to participate in the 250th anniversary of the United States. Twenty-one other states have already done this, five are working on doing this and others will follow shortly. This has been done in the past. We prefer calling this event USA 250 which is easier to say than semiquincentennial. The Historical Society has the infrastructure to successfully undertake this. The statute already tasks the society with leading statewide commemorations such as this and we are excited for this opportunity. The goal of the United States commission on the semiquincentennial is that the shared experiences of USA250 will have ignited our imaginations, elevated our diverse stories, and demonstrated the lasting durability of the American project. Establishing this committee will help us connect with the national efforts and funding that may be available. The obligation of the committee is to work with groups across Washington to make sure that this is truly a statewide observation. This is a wonderful opportunity to focus on our shared values and the urgent conversation on where progress has been made and still needs to be made. This will also promote civic education in our country.
