HOUSE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE & LABOR

Background: Amusement games are games played for entertainment where the person actively participates and the outcome depends on the player's skill and is not controlled by the operator of the game. Amusement games include, among others, dart games, ring games, games requiring hand/eye coordination, and mechanical crane games. Only merchandise may be awarded as prizes.

Amusement game operators must be licensed by the Gambling Commission and must conduct the games according to rules adopted by the commission. Current law requires games to be conducted in connection with certain events or at certain locations such as agricultural fairs, amusement parks, and regional shopping centers. Games may also be licensed for operation at premises of any liquor licensee whose license restricts access by minors, and at businesses that primarily serve food and offer family entertainment, including at least three activities such as amusement devices, theatrical productions, mechanical rides, motion pictures and slide show presentations.

Summary of Bill: Businesses that primarily serve food may be licensed by the Gambling Commission to operate amusement games.
