Background: The Department of Licensing (DOL) may issue special license plates to every honorary consul or official representative of a foreign country, duly licensed and holding an exequatur issued by the U.S. Department of State. The applicant is required to pay the regular license fee and the motor vehicle excise tax before the special license plate is issued by DOL.

The issuance of diplomatic license plates is considered a way of showing the consuls or official representatives the importance of their international relationship with the United States.

Representatives of the government of Taiwan, through the Taipei Economic and Cultural Office, enjoy many of the privileges afforded to other foreign diplomatic residents; however, there are no provisions allowing the Department of Licensing to issue them special license plates.

Summary of Bill: The Department of Licensing (DOL) is authorized to issue special license plates for passenger vehicles that are owned or leased by officers of a "Recognized Foreign Organization" at no charge. The applicant for a special license plate is exempt from payment of the regular license fees, the state motor vehicle excise tax, and any county vehicle license fees. The license plates must bear the words "Foreign Organization" to distinguish them from diplomatic license plates.

The special license plates may be transferred to another vehicle; however, DOL must be notified of the transfer. License plates that are removed but not transferred to another vehicle are to be immediately forwarded to DOL to be destroyed. When the owner or lessee is relieved of his or her foreign organization duties, the license plates must be returned to the DOL and regular plates issued.

"Recognized foreign organization" means an instrumentality established by a foreign government recognized by the United States before January 1, 1979, and that is without official representation or diplomatic relations with the United States.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on January 26, 1996.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
