Background: School Safety. A school district has a duty to exercise reasonable care to protect students from reasonably foreseeable dangers by controlling the conduct of its students.

Gang Activity. A "gang" is any company of persons who act in concert for criminal purposes.

Trespassing on School Grounds. A special statute applicable to public schools provides that a person is guilty of a misdemeanor if the person willfully disobeys an order to leave the school grounds under certain circumstances.

Students' Criminal History. School districts may participate in the exchange of information with law enforcement and juvenile court officials to a certain extent.

When a student transfers to another school, the school forwards various records, but the statute governing records transfer does not directly address transferring criminal history information.

Suspension and Expulsion Policies. Several statutes, administrative rules, and cases delineate a school's authority to suspend or expel students.

The United States Supreme Court has ruled that students have procedural due process rights to prevent erroneous deprivation of the right to attend school.

A teacher may exclude any student from class who disrupts the class. The exclusion may be for all or any part of the balance of the school day, or until the principal and teacher have conferred, whichever occurs first. The teacher must attempt one or more alternative forms of corrective action, except in emergencies. A student may be excluded from a classroom for longer periods of time if the student has repeatedly disrupted the classroom.

A student who defaces school property may be suspended and punished. The parent is liable for damages caused by the student. The school may withhold grades, a diploma, and transcripts until the parent has paid. If the parent and student are financially unable to pay, the school must provide a voluntary work program in lieu of payment.

Possession of Weapons on School Grounds. It is unlawful for any person to carry onto school grounds a variety of weapons, such as firearms, spring-blade knives, throwing stars, and nun-chu-ka sticks. A violation is a gross misdemeanor, and if the violator is a student, he or she may be expelled.

Dress Codes. A school board may establish schools or programs that parents may choose for their children to attend which require students to conform to a dress and appearance code if the board accommodates students who may be unable to afford or wear a uniform.

Summary of Bill: Findings. The Legislature finds that students and staff need to be safe at school and makes various findings about measures to enhance school security.

Provisions Governing Gangs. A student may be suspended or expelled if the student is a member of a criminal street gang and knowingly engages in a pattern of criminal gang activity. Definitions of criminal street gang– and pattern of criminal gang activity– are included.

A person who is of school age as described above, who threatens another person because the other person refuses to join a criminal gang or has attempted to withdraw from a criminal gang, is committing gang intimidation. Gang intimidation is a class C felony.

School Ground Trespass. The crime of willfully refusing to leave school grounds is raised to a gross misdemeanor.

Students' Criminal History. The juvenile court administrator must notify the parents and school principal if an elementary or secondary school student is charged with any of the following offenses: violent or sex offenses, inhaling toxic fumes, violations of the controlled substances provisions, or liquor violations. The administrator must also notify the principal and parents of the disposition of the offense.

The principal must provide the criminal history information to the student's teachers, supervisors, and other personnel who need to know for security reasons. Otherwise the information is confidential except when it may be disseminated pursuant to a statute or federal law.

When a student transfers to another school, the criminal history information must be sent to the new school, as well as immunization, health, and attendance records. If a student is transferring from a private school and did not pay tuition, fees, or fines, the private school may withhold the student's transcript.

Suspension and Expulsion Policies. Schools must adopt policies to restore discipline to the classroom. The policies must allow teachers to take disciplinary action to correct a student who disrupts classroom activities. If a student commits certain offenses, such as an assault against a teacher, the student may not be assigned to the teacher's classroom. Similar rules apply if a student commits an offense against another student. A principal must consider long-term suspension or expulsion if a student repeatedly violates school rules or laws.

School districts may adopt policies that limit possession of paging telecommunication devices or cellular telephones.

A teacher may suspend a disruptive student from the teacher's classroom for the day of the violation and two more days, or until the principal and teacher have conferred, whichever occurs first. The student may not return to the classroom without the teacher's consent.

School principals and teachers must confer annually to establish criteria to determine when teachers must complete classes in classroom management skills.

If a student is suspended for damaging property belonging to the school, a contractor, a school employee, or another student, the student may not be readmitted until payment in full has been made for the damage, or until directed by the superintendent of schools. If the property damaged is a school bus, the student may not ride on a school bus until full payment is made or the superintendent of schools readmits the student. The school may still provide a work program in lieu of payment of money.

School districts must collect data on disciplinary actions taken in each school, including information about the grade, gender, ethnicity, race, and age of each child against whom the action is taken.

Restrictions on Carrying Knives on School Grounds. It is unlawful for a person to carry onto or possess on elementary or secondary school premises, any knife capable of being used to inflict serious bodily injury. A knife— is defined and includes pocket knives.

Dress Codes. Dress codes may prohibit wearing gang-related apparel, but the school must notify the students and parents of what clothing and apparel the school considers to be gang related and may not impose disciplinary action against a student without providing the notice.

EFFECT OF SENATE AMENDMENT(S): The striking amendment deletes language so that when a nonresident student enrolls at a new school, the former school is not required to send the student's health records. The court is required to notify a school principal when a student is convicted, adjudicated, or enters into a diversion agreement, but not when a student is charged. Prior to notifying the school, the student's parent or legal guardian must be notified of the school's notification. The specific data required to be collected on disciplinary actions is deleted, although school districts are required to collect data on disciplinary actions. The collection of data by school districts cannot include personally identifiable information including, but not limited to the student's social security number, name or address. Language is deleted which makes it unlawful to carry any knife capable of being used to inflict serious bodily injury, including a pocket knife. It is still unlawful to carry certain knives (switchblade, dagger, or dirk) on school grounds. A student may be disciplined for using abusive or foul language toward any school district employee or school volunteer in addition to teachers or other students. The principal must report the disciplinary action taken to the school employee who referred the student to the principal for disciplinary action. The emergency clause is deleted. Technical amendments are made. The definition of "gang" is changed. The elements of the crime of "criminal gang intimidation" are changed to require that the perpetrator's threat is a threat to inflict bodily harm. The crime of criminal gang intimidation is ranked on the adult sentencing grid at level III. Language authorizing suspension or expulsion of gang members is changed to authorizing suspension or expulsion of students who engage in "gang activity" on school grounds. "Gang activity" is not expressly defined and the definition of "pattern of criminal gang activity" is deleted.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on February 12, 1997.

Effective Date: The bill declares an emergency and takes effect immediately.

Testimony For: (Education) A large part of the bill is trying to address the gang problem in our schools. Teachers do not know the background of the children who may cause problems. Teachers need additional powers to enforce discipline and increase safety. The bill makes many improvements but may go too far in certain respects, such as allowing teachers to expel students. The bill could benefit from some technical changes.
