HOUSE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE & LABOR

Majority Report: Do pass. Signed by 7 members: Representatives Clements, Republican Co-Chair; Conway, Democratic Co-Chair; B. Chandler, Republican Vice Chair; Wood, Democratic Vice Chair; Hurst; McIntire and McMorris.

Staff: Chris Cordes (786-7103).

Background:

In certain circumstances, the Department of Social and Health Services (DSHS) may garnish wages or unemployment benefits to collect child support from parents responsible for child support. On receiving the notice, the employer or the Employment Security Department (ESD) must withhold the amount from earnings or from unemployment benefits, respectively, and remit the amount to the DSHS. The statute permits the employer or the ESD to deduct a processing fee from the amount withheld.

Federal unemployment insurance law allows the states to make deductions from unemployment benefits only in limited circumstances, including deductions for child support payments. The amount deducted from benefits, however, may not exceed the child support payment and administration costs may not be paid from benefits. Under the Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA), the state's employers receive a tax credit against their federal unemployment tax, and the state receives a share of the federal FUTA revenues for administration of its unemployment insurance system, only if the state maintains an unemployment insurance system in conformity with federal law.
