SENATE COMMITTEE ON NATURAL RESOURCES, OCEAN & RECREATION

Majority Report: Do pass.

Signed by Senators Jacobsen, Chair; Doumit, Vice Chair; Oke, Ranking Minority Member; Fraser, Morton, Spanel, Stevens and Swecker.

Staff: Vic Moon (786-7469)

Background: There are two different closed commercial fisheries for Dungeness crabs in Washington. One fishery is operated for the Puget Sound, and the other is limited to coastal waters. To catch crabs commercially, Washington boats must have a license for the appropriate fishery.

Crabs are caught using crab pots. Each crab pot must be attached to a buoy and fished individually. In both fisheries, each buoy must be marked clearly with a tag that contains the name or license number of the person using that specific pot. The Department of Fish and Wildlife (Department) manages a buoy tag program in each fishery and is authorized to charge a fee to the holders of Dungeness crab licenses to pay for the production of the tags and the management of the tag programs. Each buoy tag costs 70 cents, paid in an annual fee. Revenue from the fees are deposited into either the Puget Sound Crab Pot Buoy Tag Account or the Washington Coastal Crab Pot Buoy Tag Account. These are non-appropriated accounts used to pay for the buoy tags and administration of the buoy tag programs.

The Crab Pot Buoy Tag Program began in the Puget Sound fishery in 2001, and in the coastal fishery in 2005. Coastal crab fishers from out of state are not required to pay the buoy tag fee for crab pots fished off Washington's coast. The Department estimates that there are about 15,000 such crab pots.

Summary of Bill: The bill charges a buoy tag fee to holders of out-of-state crab fishing licenses who participate in Washington's coastal fishery. Out-of-state crab fishers must purchase and place Washington buoy tags on their crab pots when fishing in the federal waters off the Washington coast.
