Background:

State Real Estate Excise Tax.
Real estate excise tax (REET) is due on the sale of real estate and transfer of controlling interest in an entity that owns real property in the state. The tax base is the selling price of real estate, including the amount of any liens, mortgages, and other debts. In the case of the transfer of controlling interest, the tax base is the true and fair value, or selling price, of the real property transferred. The tax is typically paid by the seller of the property, although the buyer is liable for the tax if it is not paid.

The state REET rate is 1.28 percent.

The state REET revenue are distributed as follows:

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.
• 2 percent to the Public Works Assistance Account (PWAA) through June 30, 2023. After that date, 6.1 percent to the PWAA;
• 4.1 percent to the Education Legacy Trust Account through June 30, 2023. After that date, no revenue distribution to the Education Legacy Trust Account;
• 1.6 percent to the City-County Assistance Account; and
• the remainder to the State General Fund.

Any penalties assessed for delinquent REET payments are deposited into the Housing Trust Fund.

Counties collect the state REET on behalf of the state and retain 1.3 percent of the collections to offset administrative costs.

Education Legacy Trust Account.
The Education Legacy Trust Account (ELTA) was created in 2005. Money in the ELTA can only be used for K-12 and higher education. Revenues deposited into the ELTA are not considered GSR for purposes of the budget stabilization account.

Tax Preference Performance Statement.
State law provides for a range of tax preferences that confer reduced tax liability upon a designated class of taxpayer. Tax preferences include tax exclusions, deductions, exemptions, preferential tax rates, deferrals, and credits. Currently, Washington has over 650 tax preferences, including a variety of sales and use tax exemptions. Legislation that establishes or expands a tax preference must include a Tax Preference Performance Statement (TPPS) that identifies the public policy objective of the preference, as well as specific metrics that the Joint Legislative Audit and Review Committee (JLARC) can use to evaluate the effectiveness of the preference. All new tax preferences automatically expire after 10 years unless an alternative expiration date is provided.

Capital Gains.
Most property owned by an individual for personal purposes is considered a capital asset, including houses, furniture, cars, stocks, and bonds. The sale of these items may result in a capital loss or a capital gain. Short-term capital gains or losses are gains or losses from assets held for one year or less. Long-term capital gains or losses are gains or losses from assets held for more than one year.

At the federal level, the gains on some of these capital assets may be subject to taxation, and the losses may be deducted, when computing an individual's net capital gain for tax liability purposes.

Some property is exempted from federal capital gains tax. This includes: stock in trade and other inventory; accounts or notes receivable; depreciable property; real estate used in a trade or business; and certain hedging transactions. In addition, an individual may not need to report the sale or exchange of a main home.

An individual filing a 1040 federal return calculates any capital gains or losses on Form 8949 and reports the gain or loss on Schedule D. Capital gains are generally taxed at a lower rate than other income. The rates are determined by the source of the net capital gain and the taxpayer's
For tax year 2018, the five maximum capital gains rates are 0 percent, 15 percent, 20 percent, 25 percent, and 28 percent. For example, if the net capital gain resulted from the sale of collectibles, the 28 percent rate applies; however, if the gain is not from the sale of collectibles, small business stock, or an unrecovered section 1250 gain, and the regular tax rate that would apply is 10 or 15 percent, then the capital gains tax rate is 0 percent.

"Other gain" means any gain that is not a collectibles gain, gain on small business stock, or unrecovered section 1250 gain.

Summary of Bill:

Capital Gains.
Beginning January 1, 2020, a tax of 9.9 percent is imposed on the adjusted capital gains of an individual for the privilege of selling or exchanging long-term capital assets or receiving Washington capital gains. This tax is in addition to any other taxes imposed by state and local governments. This tax also applies to beneficial owners who are individual owners of long-term capital assets held by a pass-through or other disregarded entity, to the extent the individual's ownership interest in the entity is reported for federal tax purposes.

"Washington capital gains" are defined as an individual's adjusted capital gains allocated to Washington state, less $100,000 for an individual or $200,000 if filing jointly.

"Adjusted capital gain" is defined as the federal net long-term capital gain plus any loss from a sale or exchange that is exempt from the tax imposed in this chapter, and less any gain from a sale or exchange that is exempt from the tax imposed in this chapter, to the extent that such gain or loss was included in calculating federal net long-term capital gain.

Long-term assets can include real estate and intangible or tangible personal property:

- For real estate, the capital gains tax will apply if the real property sold or exchanged is in Washington, or the majority of the fair market value of the property is in this state.
- For intangible personal property, the capital gains tax will apply if the taxpayer was domiciled in Washington at the time of sale or exchange.
For tangible personal property, the capital gains tax will apply if the property was located in Washington at the time of the sale or exchange. The sale of tangible personal property will also be subject to the state's capital gains tax if:

1. the property was located in Washington at any time during the current or immediately preceding taxable year;
2. the taxpayer was a Washington resident at the time of the sale or exchange; and
3. the sale was not subject to income or excise tax on the adjusted capital gain by another taxing jurisdiction.

The following assets are exempt from the capital gains tax:

- any residential dwelling, which means property that consists solely of a single-family residence, a residential condominium unit, or a residential cooperative unit, including an accessory dwelling unit, a multifamily residential building consisting of common walls and fewer than four units, or a floating home;
- retirement assets, including 401(k), a tax-sheltered annuity and custodial account, deferred compensation plans, individual retirement accounts (IRAs), Roth IRAs, employee defined contribution programs, employee defined benefit programs, or similar retirement saving vehicles;
- assets condemned by the government;
- cattle, horses, or breeding livestock held for more than 12 months if 50 percent of the taxpayer's gross income for the year is from farming or ranching;
- agricultural lands for which the taxpayer has regular, continuous, and substantial involvement in the operation of the land and meets the federal criteria for "material participation" for 10 years previous to a sale;
- property used in a trade or business if it qualifies for depreciation under federal law; and
- timber, timberlands, or receipts from a Real Estate Investment Trust.

A deduction from the amount of adjusted capital gain is authorized for the sale of a qualified family-owned small business. The deduction is the amount of adjusted capital gain derived from the sale of at least 90 percent of all of the fair market value of the assets of, or transfer of at least 90 percent of the taxpayer's interest in, a qualified family-owned small business.

A "qualified family-owned small business" is defined as a business:

- in which the taxpayer held a qualifying interest for at least eight years immediately preceding the sale or transfer;
- in which the taxpayer or a family member materially participated in the operation of the business for at least five of the eight years immediately preceding the sale or transfer, unless the sale or transfer was to a family member;
- that had no more than 50 full-time employees at any time during the 12-month period immediately preceding the sale or transfer; and
- that had a worldwide gross revenue of $7 million or less during the 12-month period immediately preceding the sale or transfer.

"Material participation" means an individual was involved in the operation of the business on a regular, continuous, and substantial basis.

"Qualifying interest" means an interest as a proprietor in a business carried on as a sole-proprietor. It can also mean an interest in a business if at least:
• 50 percent of the business is owned, directly or indirectly, by the taxpayer and members of the taxpayer's family;
• 30 percent of the business is owned, directly or indirectly, by the taxpayer and members of the taxpayer's family, and at least 70 percent of the business is owned, directly or indirectly, by members of two families; or
• 30 percent of the business is owned, directly or indirectly, by the taxpayer and members of the taxpayer's family, and at least 90 percent of the business is owned, directly or indirectly, by members of three families.

A "resident" is an individual domiciled in Washington during the entire taxable year. A resident also includes a person who is not domiciled in Washington during the taxable year, but maintained a place of abode and was physically present in Washington for more than 183 days during the taxable year. Such person will be a resident for that portion of the year in which they were domiciled or maintained a place of abode. If an individual maintained no permanent place of abode in this state during the entire taxable year, maintained a permanent place of abode outside of Washington for an entire taxable year, and spent an aggregate of no more than 30 days in Washington, the person is considered a nonresident.

Deductions are allowed for taxes prohibited by the United States or Washington constitutions or laws. In addition, a deduction for Washington capital gains tax paid is available for the business and occupation (B&O) tax. Credits are allowed equal to the amount of any legally imposed income or excise tax paid by the taxpayer to another jurisdiction.

The administrative provisions for the Department of Revenue (DOR) apply to this new tax, and additional provisions for the filing, payment, and applicable penalties are included. The DOR may enter into reciprocal agreements with other states to offset delinquent taxes. Persons are required, even if they do not owe Washington capital gains taxes, if their Washington capital gain for the calendar year is at least $75,000 if an individual, $150,000 if married and filing jointly.

It is a class C felony to knowingly attempt to evade payment of the capital gains tax. It is a gross misdemeanor to knowingly fail to pay tax, make returns, keep records, or supply information required.

All taxes collected on the sale of a long-term capital asset must be deposited in the Education Legacy Trust Account (ELTA).

Education Legacy Trust Account.
The ELTA is amended to include expenditures for early learning programs as an authorized use of the ELTA funds.

Real Estate Excise Tax.
The state REET rate structure is modified. Beginning on January 1, 2020 through December 31, 2022, the rate is:

• If the selling price is equal to or less than $500,000, 0.9 percent;
• If the selling price is greater than $500,000:
  • 1.28 percent on the portion of the selling price that is equal to or less than $1,500,000;
2 percent on the portion of the selling price that is greater than $1,500,000 but equal to or less than $7,000,000; and
3 percent on the portion of the selling price that is greater than $7,000,000.

The new rate structure does not apply to undeveloped land, timberland, agricultural land, and water or mineral rights. The rate for these types of property would continue to be 1.28 percent, the same rate under current law.

Beginning on January 1, 2023 and every four years thereafter the selling price thresholds are adjusted to reflect the lesser of the growth in the Consumer Price Index for Shelter (CPI-Shelter) over the past four years or five percent.

The DOR is directed to:
- Calculate the updated thresholds on July 1, immediately prior to the effective date of the new thresholds;
- Publish the updated thresholds on September 1, immediately prior to the effective date of the new thresholds; and
- Report the updated thresholds to the fiscal committees of the Legislature within six months of the effective date of the new thresholds.

If the growth in CPI-Shelter is less than 0 percent, the current selling price thresholds will continue to apply.

Fifty-five and one half percent of the new REET revenue that is attributable to the rate structure modifications is dedicated to the ELTA. The remaining forty-four and one half percent of the new revenue is dedicated to the State General Fund. The distribution scheduled of the remaining REET revenue is unchanged.

Tax Preference Performance Statement.
This act is exempt from the requirements of a tax preference performance statement, a review by the JLARC, and the automatic 10 year expiration of any tax preferences.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on March 25, 2019.

Effective Date: The bill contains an emergency clause and takes effect immediately.
