AN ACT Relating to establishing the Washington investment trust; amending RCW 30A.04.020, 43.08.135, and 43.84.080; reenacting and amending RCW 42.56.270 and 42.56.400; adding a new section to chapter 39.58 RCW; adding a new section to chapter 41.06 RCW; adding a new chapter to Title 43 RCW; creating a new section; providing an expiration date; and declaring an emergency.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON:

NEW SECTION. Sec. 1. FINDINGS—INTENT. (1)(a) The legislature finds that there are significant public infrastructure and program needs of the state that are unmet, and that the level of unmet need has been exacerbated by numerous factors including our self-limiting constitutional debt ceiling, declining per capita revenues which limits the debt calculation and our ability to service debt while at the same time meet the basic social and economic development needs of the people, and our growing population which leads to increasing demands on our already overburdened infrastructure and services.

(b) The legislature also finds that the costs to the people for bonded debt is roughly twice as much as the original amount borrowed over the usual twenty-five to thirty years' life of the bond, and that this debt service payment from the general fund comes at the expense of other more needed programs and services. The state issues new bonds for needed capital year after year, which has pushed our debt to the constitutional limit. This has proven to be an unsustainable practice as directly evidenced by our inability to maintain existing infrastructure or fund new needed infrastructure for the development of our economy.

(c) Furthermore, the legislature finds that the general fund is being tasked with doing more with less: Students suffer under crushing debt, public housing capacity is diminishing even as our population is growing at a record rate, income and wealth inequality is expanding to historical highs which exposes our regressive revenue structure and leads to lower per capita revenue while increasing our need for services, addressing our share of global climate change will require huge investments into renewable energy sources, small businesses suffer from lack of access to capital while big corporations are amassing enormous wealth and the power it yields, and much of our public infrastructure is at a critical state of failure.

(d) The legislature further finds that there is a strategic opportunity to use the state's depository assets to generate additional benefit for the people and the economy of the state by creating a public depository and lending institution that is owned by the people of the state of Washington for the benefit of the people of the state of Washington. This state-owned bank will produce new revenue for the state without raising taxes while also creating greatly expanded financing capacity for infrastructure and other projects for public benefit that will grow much needed capacity for future generations.

(e) The legislature also finds that public banking is a well-proven strategy globally. On the other hand, the public financing paradigm in the United States has been to rely on commercial banking rather than public banking. The exception to our United States paradigm is North Dakota, which has owned its own bank, known as the bank of North Dakota. This one hundred year old publicly owned bank in 2018 reported its fourteenth consecutive year of record profits for the people of the state of North Dakota with the people earning seventeen percent return on their investment in the bank, while increasing public financing capacity for the state and also working in partnership with community banks to increase access to capital for its people and businesses through student loans, farming and small business loans, and other economic development programs. The bank of North Dakota has provided stability and capacity to the people of North Dakota throughout adverse cycles like the great recession of 2009 and the oil price crash of 2013.

(f) The legislature also finds that the leveraging capacity of a public depository bank would increase our public financing capacity by an order of magnitude. Other proposals to create so-called infrastructure banks are actually revolving loan accounts that are not really banks and cannot offer this basic leveraging capacity benefit of a bank because they are not the state's tax revenue depository.

(g) Finally, the legislature finds that a state bank is the cornerstone of a much larger and needed comprehensive economic development and social development strategy. While a game changing step forward on its own, it needs the follow-up with a larger comprehensive economic development and social development strategy that includes revenue reform, renewed commitment to public housing, transportation investments that support current and future needs including high speed rail, educational and workforce training investments, small and new business start-up supports, global marketing, and social safety net investments.

(h) Therefore, the legislature intends to create a publicly owned depository to be known as the Washington investment trust as a legacy institution that amasses sufficient capital reserves to address social and economic opportunities now and in the future.

(2) The legislature intends that the investment trust may:

(a) Facilitate investment in, and financing of, public infrastructure systems that will increase public health and safety;

(b) Offer cooperative ownership and services opportunities to political subdivisions within the state;

(c) Leverage the financial capital and resources of Washington state by working in partnership with local financial institutions that benefit local communities, or with community-based organizations, economic development organizations, local governments, guaranty agencies, and other stakeholder groups to create jobs and economic opportunities within our state for public benefit; and

(d) Pursue other opportunities in furtherance of its mission as directed by the people through initiative, or by act of the legislature with the concurrence of the commission.

(3) The legislature intends for the trust to apply business strategies to manage taxpayer revenues for the best interests of the state and people while concurrently meeting identified needs and strategic opportunities across the state.

(4) The mission of the trust is to use Washington's depository assets in ways that afford most efficient use of taxpayer revenues and public resources for the benefit of the people and economy of the state.

(5) In achieving its purpose, the legislature intends for the trust to adhere to the following priority principles:

(a) Institutional safety and soundness;
(b) Long-term viability;
(c) Social return and monetary return on investments;
(d) Highest ethical, accountability, and transparency standards;
(e) Prudent and best banking and business practices; and
(f) Insulation from political influence.
