HOUSE COMMITTEE ON FISHERIES & WILDLIFE

Majority Report: Do pass as amended. Signed by 8 members: Representatives King, Chair; Orr, Vice Chair; Sehlin, Assistant Ranking Minority Member; Basich; Chappell; Foreman; Lemmon; and Scott.

Staff: Keitlyn Watson (786-7310).

Background: Under current law, a person may dig razor clams for a person with a physical disability if the disabled person has a physical disability permit from the director of the Department of Fisheries. WAC 220-56-370 requires that the disabled person be on site with the digger and that both individuals be licensed to harvest razor clams.

Summary of Bill: A person with a physical disability permit is not required to be present at the site where another person is digging razor clams for him or her. However, the disabled person must be either within the digger's direct line of sight or, if obstructions prevent the line of sight, within one-quarter mile of the digger.

Fiscal Note: Available.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: (On original bill) The current requirement to be present at the site of clamdigging poses real hardship to many disabled persons with physical disability permits. Wheelchairs suffer wear and damage from sand. Disabled persons who do not use wheelchairs may find the distance too far to safely walk. The current regulation discourages eligible persons from applying for the physical disability permit.

Testimony Against: (On original bill. Concerns are addressed in amended version.) The current system is not onerous and is widely accepted by the public. The bill as written presents difficulties for enforcement agents and will result in abuses. The original intent of the physical disability permit presumes that it is beneficial to disabled persons to be physically present on the beach while the clams are dug, and this presence would not be necessary if bill were passed in current form.

Witnesses: Senator Brad Owen, prime sponsor (pro); George Caldwell, Grays Harbor College Disabled Students Services (pro); Ed Manary, Department of Fisheries (con as written, has suggested amendments which were adopted by the committee); Dave Ludwig (pro); and Ken Lindstrom (pro).
