Background:

Declarations of candidacy for the state Legislature from a district containing territory in more than one county are filed with the Secretary of State. Declarations of candidacy for the state Legislature from a district containing territory in a single county are filed with the county auditor of that county.

Summary of Bill:

A candidate for the Legislature from a district containing territory in more than one county has the option of filing a declaration of candidacy for that office with either the Secretary of State or the county auditor of the county in which the candidate resides. It is clarified where declarations of candidacy for other offices are filed.

Each county auditor with whom a declaration of candidacy for the Legislature is filed must notify the Secretary of State about this filing within one hour of the close of business on the day the declaration is filed. The filing fee accompanying a declaration of candidacy for the Legislature that is paid to a county auditor is divided among counties in the same manner as if it were filed with the Secretary of State.

Appropriation: None.Fiscal Note: Not requested.Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.Testimony For: (Original bill) A lot of candidates, particularly in eastern Washington, want to file with the local county auditor.Testimony Against: (Comments) The original bill did not provide for news media to find out who has filed for office by just contacting the Secretary of State's office rather than all county auditor offices.Testified: (In favor) Representative D. Schmidt, prime sponsor; and Suzanne Sinclair, Washington State Association of Counties.

(Comments) Rowland Thompson, Allied Daily Newspapers; and Gary McIntosh, Office of the Secretary of State.
