HOUSE BILL 2275

State of Washington                      64th Legislature                      2015 2nd Special Session

By Representative Klippert

Prefiled 06/27/15. Read first time 06/27/15. Referred to Committee on Judiciary.

1            AN ACT Relating to prohibiting the use of voluntary intoxication
2 as a defense against a criminal charge; amending RCW 9A.16.090 and 3 9A.08.010; adding a new section to chapter 9A.16 RCW; and creating a 4 new section.

5 BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF WASHINGTON:

6            NEW SECTION.    Sec. 1. A new section is added to chapter 9A.16
7 RCW to read as follows:

8            The legislature finds that voluntary intoxication from alcohol 9 and drugs and the pain and suffering that often result are 10 increasingly serious problems which have reached a crisis point both 11 in this state and throughout the nation. The overwhelming prevalence 12 of alcohol and drug use and their critical connections with crime and 13 violence are obvious and irrefutable. In Mont. v. Egelhoff, 518 U.S.
14 37; 116 S. Ct. 2013; 135 L. Ed. 2d 361 (1996), the United States 15 supreme court addressed the relevancy of voluntary intoxication to 16 considerations of mens rea. In Egelhoff, the court noted the long 17 common law tradition of excluding intoxication evidence and held that 18 the combination of that tradition, the number of states that still 19 employed the common law doctrine, and the deference accorded to 20 states in instituting their criminal justice systems justified the 21 evidentiary restriction. The legislature finds that it has the

1 constitutional prerogative to define crimes, that their definitions
2 control unless an express constitutional provision unambiguously
3 requires otherwise, that excluding evidence of intoxication in 4 criminal cases deters the commission of crimes while intoxicated, and 5 that under both state and federal rules of evidence, there are a 6 number of evidentiary exclusions that have been found constitutional, 7 including the danger of misleading the jury or unfair prejudice, and 8 various hearsay exclusions. The legislature further finds that 9 individuals are personally responsible for the choices they make and 10 the forces they set in motion, and that a person who is in a 11 voluntarily intoxicated condition or state is criminally responsible 12 for his or her conduct. The legislature intends by this act to 13 unequivocally and solely provide a legislative redefinition of the 14 mens rea element for specific and general intent crimes where 15 voluntary intoxication is alleged as part of a defense, that a 16 voluntary intoxicated condition or state is not a defense to any 17 criminal offense, and that voluntary intoxication may not be taken
18 into consideration in determining the existence of a mental state 19 which is an element of the offense unless the defendant proves that 20 he or she did not know that it was an intoxicating substance when he 21 or she consumed the substance causing the condition or state. The 22 legislature does not intend by this act to shift the burden of the 23 prosecution to the defendant, nor does it intend to reduce the burden 24 of the prosecution in proving the defendant intentionally, knowingly, 25 or recklessly committed the crime under circumstances that would 26 otherwise establish intent, knowledge, or recklessness but for the 27 defendant's voluntary intoxication.

28       Sec. 2. RCW 9A.16.090 and 2011 c 336 s 355 are each amended to 29 read as follows:

30       (1) No act committed by a person while in a state of voluntary 31 intoxication shall be deemed less criminal by reason of his or her 32 condition, but whenever the actual existence of any particular mental 33 state is a necessary element to constitute a particular species or 34 degree of crime, the fact of his or her intoxication may be taken 35 into consideration in determining such mental state. Voluntary 36 intoxication is not a defense to any criminal charge, nor may the 37 fact of voluntary intoxication be used by a defendant to demonstrate 38 the lack of any particular mental state that is an element of a crime

1 charged. Nothing in this section prohibits the prosecution from 2 introducing evidence of a defendant's intoxication.

3 (2) This section applies to voluntary intoxication produced by 4 any agent including, but not limited to, alcohol or any drug.

6 read as follows:

7 (1) Kinds of Culpability Defined.

8 (a) INTENT. A person acts with intent or intentionally when ((he 9 ~~or she~~));

10 (i) The person acts with the objective or purpose to accomplish a 11 result which constitutes a crime; or

12 (ii) The person is voluntarily intoxicated and acts in a manner
13 that would be considered intentional if the person were not 14 intoxicated.

15 (b) KNOWLEDGE. A person knows or acts knowingly or with knowledge 16 when:

17 (i) ((~~he or she~~)) The person is aware of a fact, facts, or 18 circumstances or result described by a statute defining an offense; 19 ((~~or~~))

20 (ii) ((~~he or she~~)) The person has information which would lead a 21 reasonable person in the same situation to believe that facts exist 22 which facts are described by a statute defining an offense; or

23 (iii) The person is voluntarily intoxicated and acts in a manner
24 that would be considered knowing if the person were not intoxicated.

25 (c) RECKLESSNESS. A person is reckless or acts recklessly when 26 ((~~he or she~~));

27 (i) The person knows of and disregards a substantial risk that a 28 wrongful act may occur and ((~~his or her~~)) the disregard of such 29 substantial risk is a gross deviation from conduct that a reasonable 30 person would exercise in the same situation; or

31 (ii) The person is voluntarily intoxicated and acts in a manner
32 that would be considered reckless if the person were not intoxicated.

33 (d) CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE. A person is criminally negligent or acts 34 with criminal negligence when ((~~he or she~~)) the person fails to be 35 aware of a substantial risk that a wrongful act may occur and ((~~his~~ 36 ~~or her~~)) the failure to be aware of such substantial risk constitutes 37 a gross deviation from the standard of care that a reasonable person 38 would exercise in the same situation.

1           (2) Substitutes for Criminal Negligence, Recklessness, and 2 Knowledge. When a statute provides that criminal negligence suffices
3 to establish an element of an offense, such element also is 4 established if a person acts intentionally, knowingly, or recklessly.
5 When recklessness suffices to establish an element, such element also 6 is established if a person acts intentionally or knowingly. When 7 acting knowingly suffices to establish an element, such element also 8 is established if a person acts intentionally.

9           (3) Culpability as Determinant of Grade of Offense. When the 10 grade or degree of an offense depends on whether the offense is 11 committed intentionally, knowingly, recklessly, or with criminal 12 negligence, its grade or degree shall be the lowest for which the 13 determinative kind of culpability is established with respect to any 14 material element of the offense.

15           (4) Requirement of (~~Willfulness~~) Willfulness Satisfied by Acting
16 Knowingly. A requirement that an offense be committed (~~wilfully~~) 17 willfully is satisfied if a person acts knowingly with respect to the 18 material elements of the offense, unless a purpose to impose further 19 requirements plainly appears.

20           NEW SECTION.   Sec. 4. This act applies prospectively only and 21 not retroactively. It applies only to causes of action that arise on 22 or after the effective date of this section.
