One of the LCB's rules requires all marijuana products sold at retail to include the business or trade name and UBI number of the licensees that processed and sold the marijuana, marijuana concentrates, useable marijuana, or marijuana-infused products.

Summary of Bill: The label on a marijuana product container sold at retail must include the business or trade name and UBI number of the marijuana producer and processor that produced and processed the marijuana product.

The label on a marijuana product container sold at retail is not required to include the business or trade name or UBI number of, or any information about, the marijuana retailer selling the marijuana product.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: This summer the LCB convened a work group to make recommendations on the labeling requirements for marijuana packaging. The group reviewed the requirements to determine which provisions were necessary from a safety perspective. One statutory requirement that the group reviewed was the requirement that the name of the retailer's identifying information must be included on the label. The group was unanimous that this requirement did not contribute to product safety and crowded the label where actual safety items are included. The LCB agrees with this change and, as it is a statutory requirement, could not make this change by administrative rule.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Representative Cary Condotta, Prime Sponsor; Vicki Christophersen, Washington CannaBusiness Association; Chris Thompson LCB.

Persons Signed In To Testify But Not Testifying: No one.
