SENATE COMMITTEE ON COMMERCE, LABOR & SPORTS

Staff: Jarrett Sacks (786-7448)

Background: Under the federal Labor Management Reporting and Disclosure Act (LMRDA), certain labor organizations must submit informational and financial reports with the Office of Labor Management Standards at the U.S. Department of Labor. The reports and documents filed under the LMRDA are public information, and the labor organization must make reports available to members and allow members to examine records.

PERC was created to assist public employers and employees in settling labor disputes through mediation and fact finding in a uniform and impartial manner. PERC may offer its services in any labor dispute arising under a collective bargaining statute administered by PERC, either upon its own motion or upon request of one or more of the parties to the dispute.

Summary of Bill: Every employee organization must file a report with PERC, signed by the president and secretary of the organization, containing:

- name, physical address, and mailing address of the organization;
- name and title of each officer; and
- detailed statements regarding certain provisions made and procedures followed by the organization.

Employee organizations that represent 100 employees or more must file an annual report with PERC, signed by the president or treasurer of the organization, containing the following information:

- assets and liabilities;
- receipts and sources of the receipts;
- salary, allowances, and other disbursements to each officer and employee who received more than $10,000 from the labor organization and any other affiliated labor organization, or any labor organization affiliated with the same national or international labor organization;
- loans made to any officer, employee, or member totaling more than $250, along with the purpose and terms of the loan;
- loans to any business enterprise and the purpose and terms of the loan; and
- other disbursements made by the organization, in all categories as prescribed by PERC.

Reporting requirements can be satisfied by filing copies of LMRDA required reports with PERC. PERC is given rulemaking authority to ensure the required reports are consistent with LMRDA requirements. Reports received by PERC are public records, which must be made available to the public via website and must be preserved for ten years. The employee organization must make copies of the required reports available to every employee and notify every employee in the bargaining unit that the reports are available.

Individuals required to sign the reports are personally responsible for filing the reports and for any false statements that the individual knows are false contained in the reports. PERC must assess a $50 fine for each day a complete and accurate report is overdue, and can refer matters of compliance to the Attorney General or other enforcement agency.

Any person who willfully violates the reporting requirements must be issued a fine of up to $10,000. Any person who knowingly makes a false statement or representation of material fact, or who knowingly fails to disclose a material fact required in the reports must be issued a fine of up to $10,000. Any person who willfully makes a false entry in, or willfully conceals, withholds, or destroys books, records, reports, or statements required to be kept must be issued a fine of up to $10,000.

A null and void clause is included in the event specific funding is not provided in the budget.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on January 31, 2017.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect on August 1, 2017.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: Private employees can see their union's finances under federal law; the bill allows the same for public employees. Some unions already file with federal government, but some do not have to because they only represent public employees. Employees have to make a choice as to whether to join the union; the bill provides them the information they need to make that decision.

CON: The requirements and penalties of the bill are not necessary. Unions have their own bylaws, and if a member wants this information, they can request it, or put the requirements in the bylaws. There is no reason to add additional burdens to unions.

Persons Testifying: PRO: Senator Randi Becker, Prime Sponsor; Gerald Marsh, citizen; Jami Lund, Freedom Foundation.

CON: Geoff Simpson, WSCFF; Darren O'Neil, Teamsters 252.

Persons Signed In To Testify But Not Testifying: No one.
