Recognitions.

The state has identified various months and days that recognize certain groups, events, and individuals. For example, May of each year is declared Asian Pacific American Heritage Month and is a time when education institutions, public entities, and private organizations are encouraged to designate time for appropriate activities in commemoration of the lives, history, achievements, and contributions of Asian Pacific Americans. November of each year is declared Veterans' History Awareness Month and is designated as a time to celebrate the contributions to the state by veterans. In addition, during the month of October each year, each public school, including public institutions of higher education, must provide instruction, awareness, and understanding of disability history and people with disabilities.
