Background:

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Short-Term Support and Case Aides for Foster Parents.

In 2017 the Legislature directed the Department of Children, Youth, and Families (DCYF) to design a program of respite care that would minimize disruptions to the child and serve foster parents, including the provision of short-term support and case aides who provide temporary assistance to foster parents that does not include overnight assistance. The DCYF was directed to establish a statewide pool of individuals to provide this support through contracts with nonprofit community-based organizations. Short-term support must be available to all licensed foster parents in the state as funding is available. A foster parent may request case aide services from a nonprofit organization under contract with the DCYF.

The Washington State Institute for Public Policy (WSIPP) was required to prepare an outcome evaluation of the short-term support described above, with a preliminary report due by December 1, 2018, and a final report submitted by June 30, 2021.

A preliminary report was completed by the WSIPP in 2018 that described two community-based agencies that began offering short-term support for foster parents beginning in June 2018. The two community agencies provided this short-term support in five counties and served eight families in 2018.

In 2020 the WSIPP Board of Directors voted to delay the final report on short-term support until June 30, 2023.

The requirement that the WSIPP prepare an outcome evaluation of short-term support services provided to foster parents, including case aides who provide temporary assistance for those foster parents, is removed.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.

(In support) This is a request from the WSIPP Board of Directors because the sample size is so small that they are not able to do a study, so the request is to remove the statutory requirement to conduct this study.
