3 On page 29, after line 2 of the amendment, insert the 4 following:

5 "(3)(a) Notwithstanding subsection (1) of this section, an 6 employee may be required to work part or all of the next succeeding 7 work shift following the work shift completed by the employee if:

8 (i) The work is required because of an unanticipated event,
9 including but not limited to employee illness or emergency repair
10 of production equipment, but not including a need to increase 11 production to meet an increase in market demand, and the 12 unanticipated event has or may halt a continuous production
13 operation;

14 (ii)(A) In good faith, the employer has exhausted reasonable 15 attempts to obtain voluntary work during the succeeding shift; or

16 (B) The employee has critical skills and expertise that are 17 required for the work; and

18 (iii) As requested by the employee, the employer has assisted 19 the employee to acquire safe transportation to his or her residence 20 following the succeeding shift, and has assisted the employee to 21 address child care or other family obligations successfully. At 22 the time of requiring the employee to work part or all of the next 23 succeeding shift, the employer shall inform the employee of the 24 employer's obligation under this subsection.

1           (b) This subsection (3) shall not permit an employer to 2 require any employee to work more than sixteen consecutive hours.

3           (c) For the purposes of this subsection (3):

4           (i) "Continuous production operation" means a work place that 5 routinely operates twenty-four hours a day in the following
6 industries: (A) Primary metal processing, in an industry assigned 7 the major group standard industrial classification code "33" by the 8 employment security department; or (B) paper and allied products, 9 in an industry assigned the major group standard industrial 10 classification code "26" by the employment security department.

11           (ii) "Standard industrial classification code" means the code
12 identified in RCW 50.29.025(6)(c)."

13           Renumber the subsections consecutively and correct any 14 internal references accordingly.
