Background:

Two statutes in the current guardianship chapter govern the duties of financial institutions that hold assets of a person subject to a guardianship. The two laws are partially redundant and partially conflicting.

One section, RCW 11.92.095, was passed in 1990, when the Legislature passed a comprehensive bill governing guardianship. The other section, RCW 11.92.096, was passed in 1991 as an amendment to a bill that was primarily a technical cleanup of the bill passed in 1990. The statute passed in 1991 provides more protection for the financial institution in case the guardian was not entitled to control of the ward's assets and requires the guardian rather than the financial institution to conduct an inventory of the assets. A representative of the institution must still supervise the preparation of the inventory.
