Background: The Washington State Board on Geographic Names is responsible for establishing the official names for lakes, mountains, streams, places, towns, and other geographic features in the state. The board does not have authority to name man-made features or administrative areas. The exception to this is the board's authority to name man-made lakes.

The board consists of: the state librarian and the commissioner of public lands, or their representatives; the chairperson of the Washington State Heritage Council; and four members of the general public appointed by the commissioner of public lands.

Summary of Bill: The authority of the Washington State Board on Geographic Names is extended to name human-constructed geographic features such as canals and islands, in addition to lakes. When determining the name of a human-constructed geographic feature, the board is required, whenever possible, to consult with the person who constructed the feature.

An alternate member to the chairperson of the Washington State Heritage Council is authorized.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.

Testimony For: This bill will help to establish a quorum for board meetings and improve consistency in naming of geographic features.

Testimony Against: None.

Witnesses: Bonnie Bunning, Department of Natural Resources.
