HB 1539 by Representatives Armstrong, Schoesler, Chandler, Clements, Newhouse, Delvin, Condotta and Skinner

Altering appeal procedures for water-related actions of the department of ecology.

Recognizes that in many cases the value of real property directly depends upon the amount of water that is available for use on that property.

Recognizes that water rights are a type of property right in which many different parties may assert an interest. Current statutes require many property rights actions in which different parties assert interests, such as actions for partition or eminent domain, to be filed in superior court.

Finds that informal procedures such as mediation and fact-finding have been employed successfully in other areas of the law, and may produce positive results in certain types of water disputes.

Finds that property owners should have a choice to select informal or formal hearings before the pollution control hearings board, and that relinquishment proceedings should be appealed to the court of appeals.

Giving local citizens and governments authority to determine the allocation and management of water in a water resource inventory area.

Declares and reaffirms that a core principle embodied in chapter 90.82 RCW is that state agencies must work cooperatively with local citizens in a process of planning for future uses of water by giving local citizens and the governments closest to them the utmost opportunity in determining the future allocation and management of water in the WRIA or WRIs being planned.

Finds that this process of local planning must have all the tools necessary to accomplish this task and that it is essential for the legislature to provide a clear statutory process for implementation so that the locally developed plan will be the adopted and implemented plan to the greatest extent possible.

-- 2003 REGULAR SESSION --

HB 1542 by Representatives Kristiansen, Woods, Benson, Clements, Newhouse, Chandler, Schoesler, Delvin, Pearson, Cox, Condotta and Anderson

Provides that, for a public water system, the maximum number of service connections, or maximum population to be served, or size or location of the place of use, as described or specified on a water right application, permit, certificate, or claim or as described or specified in related supporting documents may not be an attribute limiting exercise of the water right if an annual quantity limit can be determined from the permit, certificate, or claim.

Provides, however, if a water system plan is required to be approved for the public water system under chapter 43.20 RCW or as part of a coordinated water system plan under chapter 70.116 RCW, the number of service connections or population served under the water right may be further expanded only during such time as the public water system is in compliance with the requirements of its approved water system plan.

-- 2003 REGULAR SESSION --

accurate and that a water commission is necessary for the effective management of the water resources of the state.

All references to the director or the department of ecology in the Revised Code of Washington shall be construed to mean the commission when referring to the functions transferred in this act.

-- 2003 REGULAR SESSION --

Jan 29 First reading, referred to Agriculture & Natural Resources.

HB 1544 by Representatives Hudgins, Sullivan, Morris, Romero, Simpson, Ruderman, Upthegrove and Rockefeller Concerning energy efficiency and renewable energy standards.

Finds that: (1) The western energy crisis of 2000-2001 demonstrated the vulnerability of an energy system heavily reliant on hydropower resources and impacted by volatile gas prices;

(2) Washington electric ratepayers will benefit from resource planning and acquisition that hedges against future fuel price risk by ensuring that utilities rely on a diverse portfolio of resources to generate electricity;

(3) Renewable and efficiency resources provide local economic development opportunities and local jobs in Washington;

(4) Washington is blessed with an abundance of local renewable energy resources;

(5) Washington has a long tradition of energy policies that support energy efficiency and renewable energy development. These policies have stimulated economic development, reduced operating costs for businesses, made industries more competitive, made homes more comfortable and efficient, reduced the energy burden of low-income households, and protected the environment;

(6) Encouraging irrigators to increase the efficiency of their pumping operations will yield substantial benefits by reducing peak demands of both electricity and water supplies, improving farm economics, and maximizing use of water resources;

(7) The Washington state electricity system study, commissioned by the fifty-fifth legislature through chapter 300, Laws of 1998, confirmed that changes in the electric industry have had the unintended consequence of shortening utility planning horizons and reducing incentives for electric utilities to invest in energy conservation and new renewable energy resources;

(8) The study also found that there are significant energy conservation resources that cost the same or less than the least costly new electric generation options, and that while some nonhydroelectric renewable resources may not be cost-effective in the short term, they provide significant energy system and environmental benefits to warrant development;

(9) The study also found that investment in low-income energy services is declining and unstable, although the percent of Washington's population below the poverty level has increased and low-income households pay a significantly higher percent of their incomes for energy than nonlow-income households; and

(10) Fuel diversity, economic, and environmental benefits from renewable energy and efficiency resources accrue to the public at large, and therefore all consumers and retail suppliers have an equal obligation to support a minimum amount of these resources in the state's electric resource portfolio.

Finds that over five thousand state residents per year file cases and complaints with the department of labor and industries alleging they have been denied payment for work they performed. The department of labor and industries currently does not have an effective means of addressing these complaints in order to ensure workers are paid the wages they are owed.

Finds that the Washington state minimum wage law and wage claim laws do not authorize adequate penalties against violators. To improve compliance, the department of labor and industries should be allowed to assess interest on back wages and impose civil penalties against employers who are found to be not in compliance with chapters 49.46 and 49.48 RCW.
