

---

Judiciary Committee

---

HB 2475

Title: An act relating to the tolling of construction defect claims.

Brief Description: Concerning the tolling of construction defect claims.

Sponsors: Representative Ryu.

Brief Summary of Bill

- Revises the notice and opportunity to cure process in a construction defect action, adding a mediation process and further detail with respect to the termination of this process.
- Extends tolling provisions and provides for tolling in the context of claims by one construction professional against another.

Hearing Date: 1/23/18

Staff: Cece Clynch (786-7195).

Background:

Construction Defect Action.

In 2002, a mandatory prelitigation claim process was adopted for claims brought against a construction professional for property damage due to alleged defects in the construction of a residence. These requirements apply to the new construction of a residence and to any remodel that costs more than half of the assessed value of the residence and must be met before a lawsuit can be filed.

Requirements Before Suit is Filed: Notice and Opportunity to Cure.

Before a lawsuit can be filed alleging a defect in the construction or substantial remodel of a residence, a claimant must serve notice on the construction professional alleged to be responsible for the defect. The claimant's notice must be given at least 45 days before a suit is filed and must describe the claim in reasonable detail. The notice must be served by personal service or certified mail.

---

This analysis was prepared by non-partisan legislative staff for the use of legislative members in their deliberations. This analysis is not a part of the legislation nor does it constitute a statement of legislative intent.

Within 21 days of receiving the notice, the construction professional must respond to the claimant. In the response, the construction professional must do one of the following:

- offer to inspect the alleged defect and then, based on the inspection, either remedy the defect, pay for it, or dispute the claim;
- offer to settle the claim by paying for the defect, including possibly buying the residence back from the homeowner; or
- dispute the claim.

If the construction professional fails to respond, or disputes the claim, or the claimant rejects an offer of inspection or settlement, then the claimant may file a lawsuit. Procedures are also laid out for situations in which the claimant agrees to an inspection or agrees to an offer of settlement. If the construction professional fails to perform agreed repairs, or fails to meet an agreed timetable, the claimant may file the lawsuit.

If a claimant discovers another defect after a suit has been commenced, the claimant must notify the construction professional and give the construction professional an opportunity to respond in the manner described previously. The new claim may then be added to a pending lawsuit.

The timely serving of a notice of claim tolls any applicable statutes of limitations and repose until 60 days after the end of the notice and opportunity to cure period during which bringing a lawsuit is barred.

Additional Requirements Before a Condominium or Homeowners' Association Can File Suit.

Before the board of directors of a condominium or homeowners' association may sue a construction professional on behalf of two or more owners, the board must notify all residents regarding the intended suit. The notice must state the nature of the suit and the expected expenses and fees to be incurred in bringing the suit.

Definitions.

- "Claimant" means a homeowner or association who asserts a claim against a construction professional concerning a defect in the construction of a residence or in the substantial remodel of a residence.
- "Serve" or "service" means personal service or delivery by certified mail.
- "Homeowner" includes any person or entity, including a homeowners' or condominium association, that contracts with a construction professional for the construction, sale, or construction and sale of a residence. The term also includes a subsequent purchaser from an original homeowner.
- "Residence" means a single-family house, duplex, triplex, quadraplex, or a unit in a multiunit residential structure in which title to each individual unit is transferred to the owner under a condominium or cooperative system and shall include common elements as defined in the Condominium Act and common areas as defined in the Homeowners' Association Act.
- "Construction professional" includes builders, architects, builder vendors, contractors, subcontractors, engineers and others.

Statutes of Limitation.

The goal or policy behind statutes of limitation is to require claims to be brought when the evidence is still available and while witnesses can still recall the events. There are numerous statutes of limitations and which one applies depends upon the cause of action. Generally, a limitations period begins to run when the cause of action "accrues," which is such time as all elements of the cause of action are susceptible of proof and the injured party has a right to apply to a court for relief.

Statute of Repose for Improvements to Real Property.

Claims arising from the construction, alteration, or repair of improvements to real property, as well as those arising out of a variety of related services such as design and engineering, are also subject to the statute of repose, which provides that claims accrue, and the applicable statute of limitations begins to run, only during the period within six years after substantial completion of construction, or during the period within six years after the termination of the services, whichever is later. Any cause of action which has not accrued within this period of time is barred.

Summary of Bill:

The notice and opportunity to cure process is revised, including the addition of a mediation process and further specific detail with respect to the termination of the process. Offering to mediate is added to the options available to a construction professional served with a claimant's notice. If a claimant accepts the offer, the claimant and construction professional select a mediator and agree on various deadlines. Either party may terminate the mediation process.

The tolling provisions are also revised. If a claimant serves a written notice of claim on a construction professional, the applicable statutes of limitation and repose for all claims relating to the residence are tolled from the time of service until 105 days after termination of the notice and opportunity to cure process. Tolling applies to claims by one construction professional against another only if the construction professional serves the claimant's notice of claim upon the other professional within 60 days of receipt.

Definitions are amended as follows:

- "Residence" means a single-family house, duplex, triplex, quadraplex, a unit or lot in a condominium, cooperative or homeowner's association, common elements as defined in the Condominium Act, common areas as defined in the Homeowners' Association Act, and common areas as defined in the Horizontal Property Regimes Act.
- "Serve" or "service" is defined to mean delivery in the manner provided for service of a summons under RCW 4.28.020 or sending by first-class, registered, or certified mail to the last known address of the addressee, the addressee's registered agent, or any person designated by the addressee as authorized to accept service on their behalf. Service by mail is deemed effective three days after deposit into the mail.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Not requested.

Effective Date: The bill takes effect 90 days after adjournment of the session in which the bill is passed.