Background: The Deficit Reduction Act. The federal Deficit Reduction Act (DRA), enacted in 2005, requires states to have a child support enforcement program that complies with federal requirements as a condition to receiving federal funds for child support enforcement and Temporary Aid to Needy Families (TANF) programs. Prior to the enactment of the DRA, for a family that received TANF cash benefits, the state and federal government retained any current support and assigned arrearages collected up to the cumulative amount of TANF benefits that have been paid to a family. While the state was authorized to pay its share of collections to the family, it was still required to pay the federal government its share of child support collections. Therefore, any pass-through amount to the family was required to be financed completely from state funds.

The DRA allows states to pass-through child support collections to the family up to $100 per month or $200 per month for a family with two or more children and does not require the state to pay the federal government the federal share of those payments. The state must disregard the child support collection paid to the family in determining the family's cash TANF benefit.

Suspension of the Child Support Pass-Through. In 2010, with the passage of SSB 6893, the Legislature directed the Division of Child Support to suspend the child support pass-through.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony on Original Bill (Regular Session 2019): The committee recommended a different version of the bill than what was heard. PRO: This bill reinstates the child support pass-through that was eliminated during the Great Recession, purely for economic reasons. Studies show that child support compliance increases with a pass-through, now there's an incentive to either pay under the table or not at all. A $100 or $200 increase in income makes a significant difference for a family on TANF, it helps to stabilize families. Even more so for survivors of domestic violence who may otherwise have to ask for favors from the person who harmed them, with the added income they can afford to change the locks. A family could pay car insurance, or not have to decide between paying for the heat or buying diapers. This bill is good for families, good for children and good for the economy.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony on Proposed Second Substitute (Regular Session 2020): PRO: This bill was heard last year and passed out of committee unanimously. The pass-through helps family creates investment from one parent to the children. The amount of the pass-through has been cut in half in order to get it through Ways & Means. What matters is having the policy restored and the system set up. Down the road we can show the positive impacts of the pass-through, such as more parents will pay their child support when they know it goes to their families. We can then revisit the pass-through amounts. According to NCSL, 25 other states allow for some level of pass-through. When this law was in effect there was a 28 percent increase in child support payments and the unemployment rate dropped for non-custodial parents. Pass-throughs are a key strategy in reducing childhood poverty. It also lowers toxic stress and housing instability. Pass-through policies reduce tension between the two parents. The non-custodial parent is more likely to be involved with the child and a parent is less likely to stay in a less stable relationship—such as domestic violence and substance abuse.

OTHER: The pass-through is a net gain to families. While the payment does not reduce cash assistance, it does count against food assistance. A delayed implementation date to February 2021, is needed due to old system.
