Background: Marijuana producers, processors, and retailers are prohibited from making sales of any marijuana or marijuana product, if the sale of the marijuana or marijuana product is conditioned upon the buyer's purchase of any service or nonmarijuana product.

Liquor manufacturers are prohibited from discriminating in price when selling to any purchaser who will resell the product, unless the sale is based on certain authorized bona fide business factors.

Summary of Bill: Licensed marijuana businesses are prohibited from discriminating in the price of marijuana sold to other marijuana licensees, except when based on bona fide business factors. The business factors may include competitive conditions, costs of servicing a marijuana retailer's account, efficiencies in handling goods, or quantity of marijuana products purchased in the transaction or series of transactions. These factors may not be unlawful under trade regulation laws applicable to goods of all kinds.

Staff Summary of Public Testimony: PRO: The bill applies to wholesale transactions by marijuana producers and processors to marijuana retail outlets. It allows the cannabis business to use the trade practices common in other industries. It allows voluntary discounts based on bona fide business factors. The bill will help small and rural businesses, create more incentives for retailers to place larger orders, and lower costs consumers. Small farmers are severely limited in the ability to sell their products.

CON: While we are not opposed to the principle of the bill; however, we are concerned that it has the potential to exacerbate the existing problems between large and small businesses. Small businesses are being consolidated and bought out by the bigger operators. The industry is already a very controlled, highly regulated, and closed market place and the new policy might have unintended consequences.

OTHER: Our industry is divided on this issue. Some large businesses have used volume discounts that were unfair to their competitors. We are concerned on how the bill could impact small producers.
