EFFECT:

Modifies the definitions of "authorized repair provider" and "authorized third-party provider" to only include individuals and businesses in Washington.

Modifies the definition of "part" to refer to any replacement part that an original manufacturer provides to an authorized repair provider, instead of any replacement part that is generally available or used by an original manufacturer or an authorized repair provider.

Specifies that the requirement that an original manufacturer make available any parts, tools, and documentation intended for the diagnosis, maintenance, or repair of digital electronic products is limited to parts, tools, and documentation that an original manufacturer makes available to an authorized repair provider.

Establishes that requirements relating to parts pairing do not prohibit parts pairing for certain standalone biometric components for authentication purposes on digital electronic equipment.

Establishes that an original manufacturer is not required to provide digital electronic products' source code.

Specifies that the original manufacturer is not required to warrant any services provided by independent repair providers, replacing the specification that the original manufacturer does not warrant such services.
