SENATE COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE & NATURAL RESOURCES

Staff: Elena Becker (786-7493)

Background: Surface Mine Reclamation Program. The Department of Natural Resources' (DNR) Surface Mine Reclamation Program was created by legislation in 1971 with the stated purpose of ensuring that the usefulness, productivity, and scenic value of all lands and waters involved in surface mining within the state receive the greatest practical degree of protection and reclamation at the earliest opportunity following completion of surface mining.

Washington law requires miners or permit holders to have obtained a reclamation permit from DNR before engaging in surface mining. The reclamation permit application includes descriptions of the type of surface mining to be performed, a description of the minerals to be mined, any applicable State Environmental Policy Act documents, and other materials.

The Surface Mine Reclamation Program is funded through annual permit fees and permit application fees.

Summary of Bill: Several surface mine reclamation permit fees are increased. The fee for revision of an existing reclamation permit or reclamation plan is increased from $2,500 to $4,500. The annual fee for public or private permit holders is increased from $2,000 to $3,500, except that the annual fee for a public permit holder for mines used exclusively for public works projects is $2,500.

DNR is directed to advise applicants revising a surface mine reclamation permit or plan, of any information necessary to successfully complete the application within 60 days.

Appropriation: None.

Fiscal Note: Requested on January 17, 2024.

Creates Committee/Commission/Task Force that includes Legislative members: No.

Effective Date: Ninety days after adjournment of session in which bill is passed.
