As per RCW 39.12.015, 39.12.020 and WAC 296-127-011 and as was published on the internet on August 1, 2007, the industrial statistician has determined the statewide prevailing rates of wage. These prevailing rates of wage are effective for public works projects bid on or after August 31, 2007.

Every contractor and subcontractor on every public works project must file a statement of intent to pay prevailing wages and an affidavit of wages paid. Both forms must be filed on every project. The filing of the affidavit of wages paid does not set aside the requirement to also file the statement of intent to pay prevailing wages. The department may fine contractors $500 for failure to file these forms.

For more information on prevailing wage or a copy of the rates please visit our web site at www.lni.wa.gov/TradesLicensing/PrevailingWage/ or call (360) 902-5335.

[Filed July 31, 2007, 4:10 p.m.]

Reissuance of the Industrial Stormwater NPDES and State Waste Discharge General Permit

The Washington state department of ecology (ecology) is reissuing a general permit to cover stormwater discharges from industrial sites on August 15, 2007. The permit becomes effective on September 15, 2007, and expires May 31, 2008. The permit is called the "Industrial Stormwater General Permit, a National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) and State Waste Discharge General Permit for Stormwater Discharges Associated with Industrial Activities."

A draft permit and fact sheet was available for review and public comment from February 21, 2007, through April 20, 2007. Ecology published a public announcement in the Washington state register (WSR 07-04-112), and posted a public announcement on its industrial stormwater general permit web site. Ecology also mailed an announcement to all existing permit holders, interested parties, other government agencies, and tribes.

Ecology hosted five public workshops and hearings on the draft permit in Moses Lake, Mt. Vernon, Seattle, Lacey, and Longview. During the public comment period, ecology received sixty-two written public comment letters and e-mails, and two people gave oral testimony. The wide spectrum of comments require ecology to reconsider the fundamental policies underlying the draft permit. Ecology also received a number of comments requesting withdrawal of the draft permit and subsequent redevelopment. In support of this effort, ecology will reconvene its internal and external advisory committees to gather additional advice to redraft the permit.

The existing ISWGP, issued in 2002, will expire on September 20, 2007. Reopening the draft permit to an additional public involvement process will require more time than is available under the existing permit. After the existing permit expires in September, ecology would not be able to grant coverage to those facilities that are not currently under permit. Ecology will reissue the existing industrial stormwater general permit through May 2008. This will allow industries that need coverage a pathway for compliance while ecology develops a revised permit.

By mid-August ecology will discuss a new conceptual approach with its external advisory committee. Ecology anticipates having a new draft permit out for public comment by the end of October. It plans to issue the final permit in spring 2008 and the final permit will then replace the reissued permit.

Purpose of the General Permit: Under the federal Clean Water Act and state Water Pollution Control Act, the discharge of wastewater, including stormwater, requires a permit. The Code of Federal Regulations (C.F.R.) Title 40, Part 122.1(b) (40 C.F.R. 122.1(b)) requires permits for the discharge of pollutants from any point source into waters of the United States. 40 C.F.R. 122.26 (b)(14)(i) through (xi) identifies the industries required to apply for coverage under the industrial stormwater general permit. The permit addresses these legal requirements and controls the discharge of pollutants to protect surface water and ground water quality in Washington state under the authority of RCW 90.48.-260. Facilities in the industrial sectors listed on the industrial stormwater general permit web site must either apply for permit coverage or a certification of "no exposure." "No exposure" means that all industrial activities are conducted under cover so that there is no reasonable probability that pollutants from industrial activities will come in contact with stormwater. The permit can be accessed at <http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/wq/stormwater/industrial/index.html>.

Who will be Covered by the Permit? Industrial sites covered under the current general permit that submitted a renewal application to ecology since March 2007 will continue to have coverage under the revised permit unless otherwise notified by ecology.

Permit coverage is generally not required if all stormwater runoff is retained on-site (infiltrated) and cannot enter surface waters of the state under any condition. A facility that discharges only to ground need not seek coverage under this permit, unless ecology determines the facility is a significant contributor of pollutants to ground water.

Anyone with knowledge of why a specific site should or should not receive coverage under this general permit may also contact ecology.

Geographic Area: This general permit applies statewide.

Applying for a Permit: All new industrial sites or facilities without permits within the industrial categories identified in 40 C.F.R. 122.26 (b)(14)(i) through (xi) that discharge stormwater runoff to surface water must apply for permit coverage. The list of industries can be accessed at http://www.ecy.wa.gov/programs/wq/stormwater/industrial/indust\_list.html.

To obtain coverage under the general permit, applicants must submit a complete permit application to ecology. Applicants can request or download an application from ecology. The application is available online at <http://www.ecy.wa.gov/biblio/ecy02084.html>.

Applicants must comply with WAC 173-226-130(5) and publish a public notice for two consecutive weeks (with a seven-day time span) in a newspaper that has general circulation in the county in which the construction is to take place. The thirty-day public comment period required by WAC 173-226-130(4) begins on the publication date of the second public notice. Unless ecology responds to the complete application in writing, based on public comments, or any other relevant factors, coverage under the general permit will commence on the thirty-first day following receipt by ecology of a completed application, or the issuance date of this permit, whichever is later.
